Why Should New Lenox Incorporate?

Thursday, May 3, at 7:30 pm. the New Lenox school gymnasium will open its doors to a mass meeting for a thorough discussion on the subject of incorporation. Extensive preparations have been made, and one of the largest gatherings in the history of New Lenox is expected.

The general aim of the program is to present what incorporation means to the people of New Lenox. Mr. E. W. Rowley of the Joliet township high school has consented to be moderator. The five or six main speeches will be limited to five minutes each and will be followed by a ten minute period in which people in the audience can ask questions on the particular topic presented by the speaker. All of the speakers are specialists in their fields and can give reliable suggestions for handling the problems connected with incorporation as well as giving first hand experiences of some of the advantages of a local government.

The program is as follows:

What is Incorporation? by Mr. Harold Sweeney of JTHS. Government Housing and Financing by Mr. J. R. O'Connor of the PHA Planning Board.

Water and Sanitation by Dr. Cecil A. Z. Sharp, of Will County Health Department. Streets by Mr. A. C. Johnston, Paving Contractor, Joliet.

Street Lighting by P. S. Co. of N. Illinois, message to be read by Mr. E. W. Rowley

What Matteson Has Done Under Incorporation by Mayor Frank Allemong.

Mr. O. I. Lewis, attorney, will be present to answer legal questions. Senator Richard Barr will come up from Springfield for the meeting. He will say a few words on the subject of incorporation.

The original plan of the Committee on Incorporation was for a debate in which both sides of the question would be presented. Owing to the difficulty in finding speakers who would present arguments against incorporation, the program was changed and more time was allowed for questions. This should work out to everyone's advantage and no one with a pertinent question need leave the meeting without the best answer that can be given at the meeting.

Plan to attend this meeting May 3, so that you can vote your own mind.

All Loose Dogs In Frankfort Will Be Shot On Sight

Mayor George Sangmeister has opened war against dogs running loose in Frankfort. He has had many complaints from local residents who have started planting Victory gardens, that dogs on the loose have ruined some of these gardens by scratching out plants and seeds.

Mayor Sangmeister states he has issued warnings time and again to dog owners to keep their pets tied up but all his requests in this direction have been ignored. Now in order to enforce this ruling he has procured ammunition and issued instructions to Police officer Fred Wickselberger to shoot every loose dog on sight whether such dog is wearing a dog license or not. The mayor says that he is thru giving any more warnings and that from now on drastic steps will be taken to stop the loose dog nuisance. So dog owners if you value your pet you had better heed the mayor's orders or you will have a dead dog on your hands.

Hundreds Attend Dedication of Rock Island Depot At Tinley Park

Several hundred people attended the Open House and dedicatory services of the new Rock Island depot in Tinley Park last Sunday afternoon.

T. J. O'Shaughnesey, Public relations officer of the Rock Island lines, was in charge as Master of Ceremonies. The program opened with the singing of the National Anthem by the Rock Island chorus and audience followed by the Presentation of Colors of the Tinley Park Boy Scout Troop No. 55.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. O'Shaughnesey stressed the point of the friendship existing between the residents of the Tinley community and the Rock Island Lines. He read a highly commendatory letter from the Tinley Park Business Men's Association complimenting the Rock Island on the fine new station.

The Master of Ceremonies in a reminiscent mood, referred to the history the old depot made in its 64 years of service to the community and introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Hardinger of Tinley Park, who at one time served as operator of the old depot from 1887 to 1896 during which time her father Christian Andres was the agent.

In presenting the new depot to the community Mr. O'Shaughnesey called on Mrs. E. B. Campbell, Pres. of the Tinley Park PTA who made an acceptance speech. A significant statement was that the community had been handed this fine new building intact, clean and Mrs. Campbell stressed the need and necessity of the children of the community as well as the parents to see to it that this new station will not be marred in any way, that local pride should prevent any acts that might deface either the interior or exterior of the building.

Mayor elect Wesley J. Stemm, also made a few brief remarks. Other Rock Island officials introduced by the Master of Ceremonies were I. C. Bruce, assistant passenger traffic manager, Supt. Heyde and several other officials including the Rock Island freight agent.

In closing Mr. O'Shaughnesey voiced the hope that the strife and stress of the world war would soon end and that the younger generation attending this dedication program might live in an era of world peace in the years to come.

The Rock Island Lines mixed chorus sang a number of patriotic selections. The dedication ceremonies were attended by people from all surrounding towns and territory including Mr. Henry Thoeming of Chicago Heights, former resident of Tinley Park who in his boyhood served as newsboy. He relates that at that time, which was along in the 90's, 44 German papers and 2 English newspapers were sent to Tinley Park via the Rock Island. Another old timer was Geo. Wadell of Chicago who was a Tinley resident over 64 years ago and who is accredited with having planted the large willow tree standing just west of the old station in Tinley Park.

Tinley Man Stricken; Woman Killed; 4 Hurt

The illness of one man brought about a chain of circumstances and the death and injury to occupants of two automobiles.

This event of tragedy began when Tom Connolly, aged 65 years old of Tinley Park, was stricken on a Rock Island west bound suburban train Wednesday evening and was unable to arise from the seat when the train left Tinley Park.

When the train pulled in at Mokena at 6:12 pm. he managed to tell the conductor that he wanted to get off and asked for a return slip which was given. As he stepped off the train in front of the Mokena depot he began to stagger and Geo. Bennett, the Deputy of Mokena saw the man's plight and aided him to the waiting room.

When Connolly attempted to get on his feet he fell to the floor and was unable to speak. At this moment Whitney Carter, Rock Island agent at Mokena came on the scene and suggested that the pocket's of the man be searched for identification.

Deputy Bennett searched him and found a pocketbook which contained a sum of money and receipts from a Masonic lodge in Chicago of which Connolly has been a member for a number of years.

Mr. Carter got in touch with the Secretary of the lodge and he verified that Connolly was in good standing and suggested he be removed to the nearest hospital.

Dr. E. G. McMahon of Mokena was summoned and upon examination found that Connolly had suffered a basal stroke rendering him helpless and speechless.

Hirsch Bros. ambulance from Chicago Heights was summoned and the stricken man was removed to Silver Cross hospital in Joliet, where he remains in a semi-conscious condition. Mr. Connolly has been employed in the Quartermaster depot of the government and has been a resident of Tinley Park for the past 12 years. He resided alone in the south Elmore subdivision. He has one sister Mrs. Ada Behr of 4812 Potomac Ave., Chicago, who was notified of her brother's illness.

After the removal of the stricken man to the Joliet hospital Deputy Bennett and Harold Spiess, member of the Mokena village board drove to Tinley Park to check up on Mr. Connolly. On their return trip to Mokena, they figured in a serious automobile accident at the junction of the Tinley Mokena road and R. 45 a short distance northeast of Mokena.

Mr. Spiess was driving and claims he stopped for the intersection and looked both ways and didn't see any other car approaching. Just as he got to the intersection a fast moving car approached from the south and collided with his car. The impact carried the cars for over 150 feet.

In the north bound car which was driven by Robt. Elsner of Frankfort, were his wife and Miss Ethel Newberry of 106 Herkimer St., Joliet.

In the terrific crash Miss Newberry was tossed out of the car and hurled over into an adjoining plowed field. The driver of the Elsner car escaped injury but Mrs. Elsner suffered injuries and was removed to Silver Cross hospital.

Dr. E. G. McMahon was summoned and arrived at the scene of the collision during a very heavy downpour of rain.

Miss Newberry was placed on a canvass and brought to the roadside but died within a few minutes. Deputy Bennett suffered very severe bruises and injuries to both legs and caused him to be laid up, while Mr. Spiess suffered injuries to his back and chest. With the two men was Deputy Bennett's wife Elsie who suffered a hip injury. Mr. and Mrs. Elsner are residents of Frankfort.

The former has been called for military service and was to leave for camp next Monday morning.

Funeral services for Miss Newberry who was 27 years old, will be held at 3:00 o'clock Saturday at the Sonntag Funeral home in Joliet.

Miss Newberry had been employed at the Frankfort Tavern.

John Cappel of Mokena was killed several years ago at the same spot where the above fatal crash occurred.

ARMY AND MEAT SHORTAGE.

It happened behind closed doors, but a lot of housewives would have relished being present when Cong. Clinton Anderson's special food committee quizzed an array of Washington bigwigs.

A lot of star witnesses were present, but the army, represented by Maj. Gen. Carl Hardigg of the quartermaster corps, chiefly took it on the chin.

War Food Chief Marvin Jones started the ball rolling when he produced figures showing that last year, when meat was plentiful, the army gobbled up the works by failing to take anywhere near the quantity allocated to it. In the fourth quarter of 1944, the army had asked for one and a quarter billion pounds of meat. Actually, the army took half a billion pounds less.

That, according to the closed-door testimony, was the chief reason why ration points on meat were dropped last year and the housewives got a windfall. The public then got back to the habit of eating meat. But today, with meat far less plentiful, the army has ordered even more than allocated to it last year.

General Hardigg was unable to satisfy the congressmen as to why the army failed to take up its meat last year, or at least failed to put it in cold storage for later use. Had this been done, army demands would now be much smaller. General Hardigg also was asked to report back to congress on meat consumption per soldier in the British army, also in the Russian army. Congressmen also asked Hardigg to report on how much meat was consumed by U. S. troops overseas, as compared with that consumed by troops in the United States.

RELAXED MEAT INSPECTION

One proposal to ease the meat shortage is to abolish federal inspection in small local slaughterhouses. These slaughterers have to pass state inspection anyway, and most of them are thoroughly reputable. But to sell inter-state they must pass federal inspection, so many now sell only within state limits. This is one reason why cattle-raising states are experiencing no meat shortage today.

General Hardigg, however, sat on the idea of relaxing federal inspection. He argued that federal inspection must continue. War Food Chief Jones and War Mobilizer Vinson were not impressed with Hardigg's argument.

"I never tasted federally inspected meat until I was in my 20s," scoffed Texas-Bred Jones.

"Out in Kentucky we did all right without federally inspected meat," Vinson agreed. "I never had it until I was out of my teens."

Representative Anderson of Albuquerque, N. M., chairman of the committee, then took General Hardigg to task for the army's system of poultry buying.

"Out my way, where we've got plenty of meat," Anderson said, "the army isn't interested in buying poultry. Here in the East, where meat is scarce, you're taking all the poultry. Why not spread your poultry buying so that in areas where the public has a hard time getting meat it can at least get a little poultry."

He pointed out that the army is taking 100 per cent of the poultry in the Delmarva area — Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

Vinson supported Anderson, telling Hardigg: "Try to work that out with the war food administration, General."

CAPITAL CHAFF

Handsome Secretary of State Ed Stettinius spent several days in New York rehearsing for the state department movie on Dumbarton Oaks. But despite rehearsals, moviegoers get a chuckle out of the way Ed rolls his eyes. Reason is he didn't learn all his lines, had to look at a blackboard just over the movie-camera in order to read them. This makes his eyes roll away from the lens as if he were a torch-singer. Otherwise it ranks as an A-1 picture.

SETTLEMENT AND STRUGGLES IN CANAAN

LESSON TEXT—Judges 2:6, 7, 11, 12, 18, 19; 6:11-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Joshua 1:9.

God keeps his promises. Israel found that to be true as He brought them into the promised land of Canaan. Those who rebelled against Him had died in the wilderness, but now a new generation had come into possession of the land.

Here they met the challenge of the heathen, and were victorious over them as they trusted the Lord. Joshua, their leader, after faithful services was ready to go to be with the Lord, but before doing so, reminded them of God's promise and of the danger of unbelief and sin. As our lesson opens, we find the people settled in the land, as far as they had taken it. We find:

I. God's Promise Fulfilled (2:6)

The Lord had promised the land to them as they went in and possessed it by faith in Him. He fully kept that promise in the measure that they believed Him. They never did take the whole land, but that was because of their failure, not God's.

The story speaks to us. God has provided a rich inheritance for the believer in Christ, but it must be appropriated by faith. How much have we taken out of the riches we have in Christ?

We are also reminded of the absolute faithfulness of God. There is little in this world in which we may repose complete confidence, but we may and should trust God. He has never failed anyone, and He will not fail us.

II. Man's Promise Broken (2:7, 11, 12).

The people had solemnly promised to keep God's commandments (see last week's lesson). That promise they had renewed in response to Joshua's farewell challenge (see Josh. 24:20, 21). They kept their word only as long as those who remembered Joshua were alive, and then they "forgot the Lord."

This fall of Israel has its counterpart in what is taking place in our land today. The great mass of decent people in America were reared in Christian homes. They know what is right, and they live on the spiritual and moral momentum received from their godly parents.

The next generation now coming into power, without the benefit of spiritual training in the home and church, are forsaking the Lord and following other gods, the gods of pleasure, of money, of lust.

III. God's Plan of Deliverance (2:18, 19).

One would have thought that God would give up a people so set on sinning, but He did not. He provided deliverance for Israel. That gives us courage, for we know that He has not given us up, but has provided in Christ a sure deliverance—if America will but turn to Him.

For Israel's deliverance God provided judges, who were not only judicial, but, in fact, primarily administrative in their work. They were God's men to call Israel back to Him. The repeated failure and backsliding of Israel brought new acts of mercy on God's part in calling out new judges.

It is interesting to note that God works through men. Some of these judges were great men. Others were just ordinary men. But each in his appointed place, at the appointed time, was God's man.

God is looking for men today who will serve Him. He wants brilliant, capable men, but He also calls the ordinary, everyday variety, and as they are faithful, He blesses them. Has He called you? Have you responded?

IV. God's Presence and Power (6:11-16).

Israel had long been under the oppression of the Midianites, who would sweep over the land and steal their crops and their flocks. Israel finally turned to God for help, and He met their need by calling Gideon as the fifth of the judges.

God knows better than to call an idle man, one who is sitting around waiting for opportunity to knock. He seeks out the busy person and gives him more to do.

Note the entirely adequate provision made for Gideon's success. "Surely I will be with thee." That means both the presence and the power of the eternal and omnipotent One.

Gideon at once began the tearing down of the heathen places of worship in his own community. It was the hardest place to start. It always is. But the one whose light is to shine afar must see that it shines brightest at home.

The humility of Gideon as he looked at himself (v. 15) is commendable. But note that he did not permit it to shut the door of faith, as he believed God and did mighty exploits for Him. Don't trust yourself, but do trust God!

When Your Back Hurts

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with burning and itching is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

Housing Project to Attract the Birds

IF YOU would attract birds, remember that they are discriminating tenants. Bluebirds like a house with nest space six inches deep below an entrance an inch and a half in diameter, and they prefer a sunny location five to ten feet high. Robins want a roof but no front on their house; a high location and a little shade, please. Wrens like a tiny house tucked under the eaves of your own dwelling.

The bird house designs shown here are planned to suit prospective tenants and their lines are so pleasing that you will be proud to make them permanent features of your yard or garden.

NOTE—Pattern 277 gives an actual-size cutting guide for all shaped parts of these three bird houses and illustrated directions for their construction. A list of all materials is included. To get pattern 277, send 15 cents with name and address direct to:

MARY O'HARA
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: In a cold rainstorm, Flicka's colt, long overdue, is born. Ken McLaughlin, Flicka's 12-year-old owner, finds her in a gulch. With the assistance of his brother Howard he brings the mare and colt to the stables. To Ken's astonishment, the foal is white. It is evidently a throwback to the Albino, a wild white stallion that is Flicka's grandsire. This horse had stolen Gypsy from the Goose Bar ranch, the big horse farm owned by Ken's father in the Wyoming mountains. Her colts, while splendid physically, were all unmanageable. Ken is worried when he realizes that the Albino's characteristics have cropped out in his colt. He waits for a favorable time to announce his big news.

CHAPTER III

But the foal! That all-conquering prepotency Rob McLaughlin had spoken of! After all the trouble Rob had taken to rid his stock of the hated blood of the Albino, here it was cropping out again. This foal was unlike its dam, unlike its sire, unlike any horse on the Goose Bar ranch. It resembled only one—the Albino. It was almost like having the Albino right there in the stall! Was the power and ferocity of the great outlaw enclosed within that mottled baby hide of pink and white? This thought made shivers go through Ken.

Flicka had finished her mash. Ken lifted the bucket down and went to the door of the barn. He swung the top half open and looked out. It had stopped snowing. The wind had reversed itself and had blown the storm back into the east whence it had come. There was a riot of scudding clouds in the sky with big stars close and bright, going in and out between them. It was much warmer.

Ken folded his arms on the bottom half of the Dutch door and leaned there thinking.

There were still other shadow-shapes woven into the aura that encircled the foal like the predictions of a fortune-teller.

That word Rob McLaughlin had dropped so casually into Ken's thought stream that day—race horse—

Race horse. It could not, of course, be Flicka, owing to the thickened tendon which was the result of her infection. But why not a colt of Flicka's? With a sweet and tractable mother to teach him manners, with the power and speed which came down to every one of the Albino's line—why not? It had been Nell who had first made this suggestion. Since then it had not been out of Ken's mind.

Ken turned from the barn door and ran his hand down that right hind leg of Flicka's. It was his fault—that thickened tendon—because he had made them catch her for him.

"But you're not sorry, are you, Flicka?" he whispered, going to her head, "because now you've got me—"

Her face, leaning against him, was very still and contented.

Ken took the lantern, gave one last look backward, and then left the barn, closing the door tightly behind him. He ran down through the gorge.

In front of the rambling stone ranch house were several acres of lawn, called by his mother, the Green, after the neat little village Greens of New England where she had spent her childhood. It was covered with a thin sheet of snow. Ken ran across it to the house, and, in the warm kitchen, took off his slicker and sou'wester and drank the hot chocolate Howard had made.

While they sat drinking, the two boys engaged in one of the wrangling, incomprehensible and wholly oblique discussions which make adult listeners conclude that the constitution of boys' minds, and their language, have nothing to do with reason, logic or natural facts.

"Promise!"

"Let go of me!"

"But he's mine."

"My tongue's not yours."

"Prom—" Ken's voice rose.

"Sh—sh—sh—" warned Howard.

But Ken was conscious of being in the right. If their father heard the noise and discovered it was because Howard wouldn't promise not to tell about Ken's colt before he had a chance to, Howard would get it in the neck.

"Promise. Promise! PROMISE!"

"All right, I promise. Get off my back."

Bound for the stables and the colt, they paused behind the house at the sight of two strange cars. Visitors. Visitors brought home to the ranch from the dinner party last night. They recognized the cars. The blue one belonged to Colonel Morton Harris, an old classmate of their father's at West Point, now Colonel of Artillery at Fort Francis Warren. The gray one belonged to Charles Sargent, millionaire horse-breeder, owner of the famous racing stud, Appalachian. Sargent had his home ranch not twenty-five miles from the Goose Bar.

"Charley Sargent and Mort Harris," said Howard airily. "That's keen. No church today."

But Ken stood looking at the cars and thinking. Charley Sargent, tall and thin as a beanpole in his narrow Cheyenne pants—always kidding and clowning—his long brown face under the wide-brimmed western hat looking as Gary Cooper's might when he got older—it was always fun when Charley Sargent came to visit, and he might talk about his race horses. Ken's heart felt a little flutter of excitement. He wanted to know all he could find out about race horses. And Appalachian, the big black racing stud—he—

"Come on!" said Howard, heading for the barn.

Ken walked slowly after him, wondering if the presence of visitors would interfere with his own surprise. Should he tell them at breakfast? It had to be arranged so that the impression was favorable. They had to be glad and proud that it was white, as he was himself. That wasn't all. He had really to act so that no one, not even his father, would suspect that he was hiding anything. That was going to be hard. It was hard enough to keep any sort of secret—harder still if you felt the least bit guilty about it.

When they reached the corral they saw that Flicka and the colt were both out, enjoying the early morning sunshine. Gus and Tim were watching, astonished and amused.

Ken rushed at Gus and grabbed him. "Don't tell anyone, Gus—they don't know yet. I want to surprise 'em—promise—"

"You cud knock me over with a feather, Kenzie," said the old Swede, with his slow smile. "But white horses is gude luck, they say."

"Never seen no such colt on this ranch before," added Tim. "What'll the Captain say?"

"Don't tell him until I have a chance to," insisted Ken. "Promise, will you?"

"Sure. You can tell 'em, Kenzie," said Gus. "She's your mare, and your colt too, I guess."

"Would it cost much, Dad?"

Ken opened the barn door and called Flicka in. The colt did not follow but stood blinking in the sunshine. Gus and Tim shooed it gently in. Ken put them both in the farthest stall and he and Howard stood for a while watching them.

But Ken had important business on his mind, and presently ran down to the house and found that his mother was making breakfast and his father upstairs shaving.

Ken leaned against the bathroom door and called gently, "Dad!"

"Hullo there!"

"Say, dad—would you tell me something?"

"Depends."

"Well—if you had money enough, what kind of fences would you have on the ranch?"

"Well—if I had money enough, I'd tear out every foot of barbed wire and put in wooden fences. Good solid posts about ten feet apart and four feet high. Even one line of rails on top of that would keep horses in—that is, if it was solid enough so they couldn't rub them down with their fannies."

"Would it cost much, dad?"

"You can get the poles for nothing in the Government Reserve, but the cutting and hauling would cost money—that's work. I wouldn't have time to do it myself."

"Even if it costs lots of money, dad, it wouldn't matter."

Rob's answer was smothered in the sounds that go with shaving, and suddenly he began his favorite shaving song.

Suddenly the door burst open and he strode out in riding breeches, boots, singlet, and a very gay good humor. His black hair was rough, his eyes very blue, and all his big white teeth showing. He almost rode over Ken and the boy felt overpowered by the impact of his father's personality. With the door closed between them, it had been less potent.

"I'll be waiting for you a-hat the kitchen door!" roared Rob, stamping down the hall toward his room. He stopped at the head of the stairs, looked over and shouted, "Say, you fellows! Mort! Charley! Are you still asleep? Flapjacks comin' up!"

There was an answering shout from the terrace at the front of the house, "We're way ahead of you!"

and Rob hurried into his room to finish dressing.

Outside, Nell and her two guests were being entertained, as was usual at the Goose Bar ranch, by the antics of assorted animals. Chaps, the black cocker, and Kim, the collie, were chasing each other on the Green as if nothing were needed for exuberant happiness but to have been shut up for a night and then let out again.

All traces of snow had disappeared. There was intense sunlight breaking everywhere into the colors of the prism. There was a boisterous wind bending the pines and making Nell's blue linen dress flutter.

"What do you think of him?" she called to Colonel Harris, who stood near the fountain inspecting Rob's work team. They were huge brown brutes. "That one you're looking at is Big Joe," she added, "the pride of Rob's heart."

"I should say," said the Colonel in his cultured, precise manner, taking off his glasses and polishing them, "that he is a pure-bred Percheron, sixteen hands high, and weighs thirteen hundred pounds."

"Just about right," said Nell, picking up her cat, Pauly, who was begging beside her. Pauly, a sinuous, tortoiseshell angora with long topaz eyes and a little siren face, slipped one arm around Nell's neck, hung on, and tried to lick her mouth.

Nell tapped the tiny coral sickle-shaped tongue and laughed.

Charley Sargent's lanky form hovered over her. "You're lookin' mighty pretty this mornin'—how do you get those pink cheeks?"

"You forget I've been slaving over the kitchen stove getting breakfast for—let's see—five male men—" She buried her face in Pauly's soft brown fur. Charley Sargent always embarrassed her with his flattering eyes and flirty ways. He made her feel about eighteen.

"Isn't this a day!" she exclaimed. "Who could believe it was snowing last night! That's Wyoming for you!" She turned her face up to the sky. There were magpies and plover and chicken hawks gliding on steeply tilted wings against the blue, and now and then, when the wind veered, came a breath of snow from the Neversummer Range in the south.

"Last night," said Charley, still hovering, "was a mighty nice party. But I'm afraid to face Rob. He bawled me out for dancin' with you so much."

"This other one," called Colonel Harris, "is not pure-bred, is he?"

"No," said Nell, running down the steps to join him. "That's old Tommy. He's our bronco-buster. Whenever Rob has a young horse he wants to take the ginger out of, he harnesses him up with Tommy."

While she chattered she was remembering how furious Rob had been last night when Charley Sargent had waltzed with her and spun her around and around so fast that her long blue dress had stood out like the skirt of a whirling dervish. All the same—it was fun.

Breakfast was noisy. There were flapjacks, thin and brown and light with slightly crisp edges. Piles of them, piping hot. A bowl of brown sugar was on the table and a jug of maple syrup. With her flapjacks, Nell liked marmalade, melted and thinned and hot.

"By Jiminy, I'll try that!" exclaimed Charley, taking the pitcher.

All the time, the thought of his colt was never out of Ken's mind. Even while he was watching and listening to the others, he was trying to figure out just how he would tell it. The build-up he had attempted with his father hadn't come to much. Ken wanted, too, to talk to his mother about the things she would like to buy when his colt was winning money on the race tracks. Dresses and velvet things with fur like the General's wife wore, so that they would all fall in love with the colt the moment they saw it because of all it was going to do for them.

But as the hilarious breakfast progressed through grapefruit and flapjacks and sausages and pots of coffee with thick yellow Guernsey cream, and Rob got up again and again to go to the kitchen, and Howard carried piles of plates in and out, Ken became convinced that this wasn't the time to tell it. They wouldn't pay attention—would just say, "Oh, a new colt? Flicka has foaled at last? Fine—pass the syrup, will you?" After all, there were so many colts born on the Goose Bar ranch.

A car drove up and stopped behind the house. As Rob returned from the kitchen, Colonel Harris said, "That's probably the sergeant and orderly with my mare."

"What for?" asked Nell.

Rob explained. "Mort wants to have his saddle mare bred by Banner, so I told him to send her up today."

"It's late for breeding, isn't it?"

"Yes," said Harris, "it is. I thought she was bred, but she isn't after all, so we're going to try again."

"Why don't you have her bred by a real stud!" said Charley. "You don't happen to be ignorant of the fact that my Appalachian is the finest racin' stud in horse history, do you?"

More Money Than Ever Before Needed for 7th

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Announcing plans for the 7th War Loan Payroll Savings Drive, Ralph G. Englesman, Director of Payroll Savings for the War Finance Division of the Treasury Dept., said today: "The Seventh War Loan will be one of the two great War Loans planned for 1945. More payroll money will have to be raised from individuals in this War Loan than ever before."

"That money is needed first, of course, to help pay for the War. Just as important, however, is the fact that with incomes up, employment high, and consumer goods scarce, it is vital that we get every possible dollar over rock bottom expenses into War Bonds—NOW."

"More money than ever before is in the hands of the men and women who work in the plants, offices, and shipyards of the country. It is the plan of the Seventh War Loan to pay particular attention to the sale of E Bonds to workers through the medium of the Payroll Savings Plan. This advance drive will start early in April and all payroll allotments plus extra cash or increased allotment sales made in the months of April, May and June and processed between April 9th and July 7th will count in the Seventh War Loan totals."

"Each company has been asked to accept a Seventh War Loan quota for sales to employees. This quota is based on the average wage scale of a company and represents its share of the overall national objective."

"This advance Seventh War Loan drive which starts in the plants, offices and shipyards in April is a crucial test. Management and labor must urge every worker throughout the country to buy Bonds with the last possible cent he or she has available."

"Only in this way can we reach the great quotas which have been assigned."

Apply For License Before May 1st

Applications for renewal of Drivers' license in Illinois should be filed before May 1st, according to the Chicago Motor club.

A driver's license is required for all persons, whether owners or not, who desire to drive in this State. Anyone driving any car in Illinois, at any time, must have a new license card in his possession on and after May 1st, the day when present licenses expire, the Club warns. The new licenses are good for three years.

"In making out the new application the expiring drivers' license number must be shown," says Chas. M. Hayes, Club President, "not the number on the license plates." Adult motorists use the white form application blank; minors ages 15 but under 18, use the blue green form. The license fee is 50 cents. Applications must be notarized. Motorists are cautioned to keep their old expired drivers' licenses, not surrender them with renewal applications.

NOTICE

Take notice that application for Retail Liquor License outside incorporated village or town in Cook County has been made by the following:

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 22.

The Golden Text was, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Cor. 5: 17).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. . . . Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him: . . . For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ, our Lord" (Rom. 5: 19; Rom. 6: 8, 10, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine, efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Way-shower; and we acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life, and Love, as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death. . . . The Christ-idea, or the Christ-messiah, rose higher to human view because of the crucifixion, and thus proved that Truth was the master of death. Christ presents the indestructible man, whom Spirit creates, constitutes and governs. Christ illustrates that blending with God, his divine Principle, which gives man dominion over all the earth" (pp. 497, 316).

UPSET STOMACH YIELDS INCHES OF GAS AND BLOAT

"I was so full of gas I was afraid I'd burst. Sour, bitter substance rose up in my throat from my upset stomach after meals. I got ERB-HELP, and it worked inches of gas and bloat from me. Waistline is way down now. Meals are a pleasure. I praise Erb Help to the sky."—This is an actual testimonial from a man living right here in Mokena.

ERB-HELP is the new formula containing medicinal juices from 12 Great Herbs; these herbs cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering—get Erb-Help. Hensel's Drug Store. a

IN MEMORIAMLADDIE J. KOVAR—April 29, 1943

In loving memory of our son who passed away suddenly.

The sun and moon are shining

On a lone and silent grave.

Beneath lies one we dearly love,

But whom we could not save.

Friends may think we have forgotten

When at times they see us smile.

Little do they know our heartache

That our smiles hide all the while.

Coal Consumers Take Notice

"As coal and coke users throughout this area began placing orders for their supplies for the next twelve months, J. C. Fitzpatrick, Area Distribution Manager for SFAW, emphasized the following features of SFAW Regulation No. 26, which became effective April 1, 1945:

1. A domestic consumer, before receiving any solid fuels, must file a Consumer Declaration with his retail coal dealer. The form must be completely filled out and Signed by the consumer.

2. All retail dealers, including truckers, who purchase coal from dealers or from a mine for resale to domestic customers, must obtain Consumer Declarations from their customers before making deliveries.

3. If the Consumer Declaration is filed prior to May 15, the dealer is required to deliver at least 30 percent of the full normal year's supply before October 1.

4. Dealers are reminded that Consumer Declarations must be obtained for any delivery made since April 1. If, because of unavoidable delays in their printing, dealers have been unable to obtain an adequate supply they may, nevertheless, make deliveries, and not later than May 1, obtain the Declaration from consumers to whom such deliveries have been made.

5. Receipts by a domestic consumer of scarcer solid fuels, which include coal produced in Dist. 7 and 8, anthracite and petroleum carbon, are limited to 80 percent of his normal annual requirements, and not more than 50 percent of his annual requirements may be delivered prior to August 31.

6. Coals produced in Illinois, Indiana, and West Kentucky, by a re-ent amendment to the regulation, are classified as less scarce solid fuels and as such may be delivered and received at any time without limitation to the extent of 100 percent of the consumer's normal annual requirements during the effective period of the amendment.

Mokena Boy Escorts Queen on Her Return to Holland

Cpl. Troy H. Leyerle of RFD 2 Mokena, Illinois a member of an American Military Police Battalion stationed in a key Belgium city was among a group from his unit chosen by the Commanding General to accompany Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands on her triumphant return to the Liberated provinces of Holland. The tour began on March 21st and ended on March 23rd in Venlo. Among the towns visited were Maastricht, Eindhoven, Heerlen, and Roermond.

She was given a stirring and tumultuous ovation everywhere. The news that the Queen was home again had somehow spread throughout the free provinces and all along the route, in every town, village, and hamlet, Hollanders with their wives and children lined the roads and cheered themselves hoarse as the Royal procession moved by. And everywhere, flapping gaily and proudly in the breeze, were the bright red, white and blue flags of Holland, the orange banners in honor of the Royal Dutch House of Orange, and flowers and bunting. It was a great moment in Dutch history.

The officers and men of the "769" who were charged with the responsibility of the Queen's safety, handling crowds, re-routing traffic and performing the numerous other duties attendant on such an august occasion drew favorable comment from people everywhere. Attired in neat blouses, white helmets and white gloves, their spic-and-span appearance was in keeping with the spirit of this great event. And the calm, efficient manner in which they carried out their duties greatly impressed the spectators.

Prior to entering the service Cpl. Leyerle worked on explosives. He was inducted at Chicago, Ill. January 15, 1943 and trained for his present job at Ft. Riley, Kansas and Ft. Custer, Mich. His parents Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Leyerle reside at R2 Mokena.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, remember that place up in the mountains where we went trout fishing last year?"

"I sure do, George. We had a great time up there, didn't we?"

"I'll never forget it. But this will interest you, Judge. I heard just yesterday that the revenue men raided a big still right near there. Guess that's where all that high-priced moonshine we heard about has been coming from."

"Wouldn't be a bit surprised. I saw in the paper the other day where the Government has raided thousands of such stills during the past year."

"Sounds sort of reminiscent, doesn't it, Judge?"

"Exactly and it's not hard to figure out. As soon as the distillers stopped making whiskey and devoted their entire facilities to the production of industrial alcohol for the Government... the racketeers muscled in again."

"I hate to think of how that might have spread, Judge, if the Government hadn't found it possible, without interfering with our war effort in any way, to permit a short resumption of legal whiskey production recently."

WHERE JOBS COME FROM

The job producing possibilities of foreign trade and a larger merchant marine are not as yet fully understood by the people of the United States. For example, many of our most important employing industries export from 10 to 50 percent of their production.

Robt. H. Patchin, Vice President, W. R. Grace & Company, gives figures which are of interest to workers everywhere. They show that automobile exports accounted for 2-3 months of the total annual employment in that industry; for two months employment in agricultural implements and machinery; 3 1-3 months in the tractor industry; 4 1-3 months in the power driven machinery industry, 1 1-2 months in the printing and bookbinding industry. These examples are typical of many others.

"The United States cannot produce all the things it needs. Nor can it consume all the things it must grow and make in order to provide a high level of employment. Exports and imports are bound to assume a larger importance to the national welfare in terms of employment—jobs," said Mr. Patchin.

"But the jobs are not merely those in field or factory. Every item of export and import trade requires an infinite variety of labor and service before, during and after the article takes form. For this reason, no satisfactory enumeration is possible of the amount of employment in man-hours or the number of jobs for which our foreign trade is responsible. Many agricultural products enter into manufactured exports, but are not credited to agriculture in export statistics. Vastly more corn is exported in the form of lard and pork than in grain.

"American exports create employment from the time a hoe is stuck in the ground, or a ton of iron ore is taken from the earth, until loaded aboard ship and delivered in a foreign market. And this is true of imports as well as exports. For an imported article, from the time it is landed on the dock, creates labor. Those planning jobs for returning soldiers and sailors, and workers released from war industries, should realize that foreign trade is vital to domestic prosperity."

It is well for our citizens who may live and work and produce a thousand or more miles from our seaports and who have never even seen the ocean, to realize that their jobs or their businesses may well depend on our future foreign trade. It therefore behooves all of us to take an interest in the development of sound foreign trade relations.

AMERICAN ENTERPRISE SCORES AGAIN

After two years of research, the announcement is now made that the oil industry is ready to produce at the command of the military forces, a new super fuel for aviation so much more powerful than 100 octane gasoline that it will permit maximum bombing of the Japanese mainland on a "suburban service schedule." While the chemical details of the new product are withheld, the Petroleum War Council has disclosed that this fuel, called "100 octane plus", is expected to surpass all other gasolines in the world in volatility and consequent performance.

Wm. R. Boyd, Jr., Chairman of the Council, said that the product was designed to "draw from the lethal B-29 Superfortresses and the futuristic B-32 Bombers and the most modern fighter escort planes, their originally intended maximums in sustained speed, short take offs, combat radius and load carrying capabilities."

Plans to extend and improve farm telephone service

FARM telephone service is more highly developed in this country than anywhere else in the world. In the territory served by Illinois Bell, rural and farm telephones have increased more than 115% in the last ten years as compared to an increase of about 50% in city telephones.

Our first job is to win the war, but the telephone companies are preparing a wide-range program to further extend and improve service to farm families.

Important new devices and methods were worked out, and others were being developed, before war demands called a halt to the program. Just as soon as conditions permit, the necessary manpower and equipment will again be put to work on the job. The goal is to bring the telephone to the greatest possible number of farm families.

MOKENA SCHOOL NEWS

We are sorry that Donald Olson is having a siege of the mumps. He had just returned to school after an absence of two weeks, due to an appendectomy.

The pupils of grades 5 and 6 are thoroughly enjoying their gym period. They have been divided into 2 baseball teams. Richard Egerton is the captain of one team and Jimmy Needham is the captain of the other. The scores are being kept from time to time and we hope to have the losers entertain the winners later. David Krapp brought two large lovely plants to school which help brighten up the room. We all appreciate David's thoughtfulness.

The third and fourth grade room is conducting a classroom activity activity concerned with feeding good and poor breakfasts to white rats. The two rats were named "Frisky" and "Grumpy."

"Frisky" is fed on a good diet of milk, whole wheat bread and butter, cereal, prunes and egg.

"Grumpy" is fed on a diet of coffee and sweet roll.

Both rats weighed 44 grams on April 12. One week later, after the above diets were given to them daily. Frisky weighed 64 grams and Grumpy weighed 46 grams.

Several characteristics are shown by the well-nourished rat. The fur is soft and it is getting slightly creamier in color. Frisky is very alert and tidy in his habits.

"Grumpy" the poorly nourished animal is nervous, not as tidy in his habits, and compared with "Frisky" he is not as healthy looking.

The children are fond of the animals and enjoy caring for them.

Crusade Goes Over

CHICAGO — Bishop J. Ralph Magee (left) chairman and director of the Methodist Crusade for Christ, receives news that the goal of $25,000,000 for postwar relief and reconstruction has been surpassed by more than a million dollars.

Dr. J. Manning Potts, who came from Roanoke, Va. to become Bishop Magee's associate, presents him a summary of reports from the denomination's 600 district superintendents. The total is $26,040,749. Of this amount 11 million is in cash, represented by pass books in the Bishop's hand. The rest is in pledges payable within the next nine months. This is believed to be the largest sum ever raised by a church for a comparable purpose.

Emphasis will now swing to other aspects of the four-year, five-fold Crusade for Christ church school attendance, stewardship, evangelism and support of international collaboration.

PLANT FOOD MAKERS HELP FARMERS MEET BIG '45 CROP GOALS

CHICAGO—Every American farm acre will have to do a bigger crop producing job in 1945, if world needs for food, fiber and oils are to be met, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"More millions of people throughout the world will depend upon the products of American soil this year than ever before," the statement points out.

"Proper use of fertilizers will contribute more to getting this production than anything else the farmer can do."

"The War Food Administration estimates that 20 to 23 per cent of the total crop production in 1944 was due to the use of fertilizer. It would take 50 million acres of land to enable the United States to produce the extra amounts of food that have been added to our national output by the use of plant food."

"In meeting the enormous wartime demands for plant food, the fertilizer industry has established a remarkable record. No other industry—aircraft, shipbuilding or agriculture itself—has worked harder to deliver the goods in the right quantity and on time. In the face of labor shortages, transportation difficulties and some scarcities of materials, the fertilizer industry has worked day and night to produce the sorely needed plant food for farmers."

"Farmers who themselves have been hampered by shortages of help and equipment can appreciate the problems manufacturers have faced in trying to overcome their difficulties and produce the much-needed plant food."

"In actual tonnage, most producers have been turning out more fertilizer than ever before in history. They have demonstrated by their wartime contribution, that they are ready to meet the conditions which peacetime agriculture will bring. A great soil rebuilding job lies ahead, to replace fertility used up to meet the unprecedented wartime demands for foods, fats and fibers. The fertilizer industry is prepared to do its part in providing all the plant food required for this vast postwar improvement and replenishment job."

Our boys must keep on fighting—we must keep on buying WAR BONDS until victory is won. Keep on BACKING THE ATTACK.

"Walk On Left Facing Traffic" is the subject of the April school poster in the series "Take Care Of Yourself", being distributed to more than 38,000 classrooms in Illinois and Indiana by the Chicago Motor Club. The poster emphasizes pointedly one of the major causes of pedestrian fatalities. Designed to stress the contribution children can make in working together for victory, this poster series has been commended by leading educators throughout the United States. Instruction sheets accompanying the poster enable teachers to use the safety lessons to the best advantage for pupils of all ages in various localities.

The Farmer and War Bond Purchases

by Charles W. Holman, Secretary

The National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation

AMERICAN farmers have a great deal more at stake in purchasing War Bonds than simply a patriotic urge to assist in financing the war so that it may be prosecuted to an early and victorious conclusion. Modern war demands governmental expenditures far in excess of those which may be met by current revenue receipts. This means Government borrowing. If a large part of this borrowing is through commercial banks additional inflationary spending power is created through the expansion of credit. On the other hand, if the borrowing is largely from individuals much of their excess funds are drained off. Hence, the pressure on prices resulting from unusually large funds bidding for limited amounts of goods and services is relieved, and thus inflation retarded.

A tremendously increased agricultural production and some increase in average prices received above those paid by farmers have raised the net income of all United States farmers from the 1935-39 average of $4.7 billion to $6.3 billion in 1941, $9.4 billion in 1942, and an estimated $12.5 billion in 1943. With available supplies of farm machinery replacements and building materials limited, Agriculture has a fund available for either debt retirement, savings readily liquidated for future purchases of machinery, buildings, etc., or for present investment in land.

A marked decrease in farm mortgages in recent years indicates that much of this fund has been properly applied to debt retirement. However, activity in land sales and a very marked increase in land values demonstrate that farmers are probably diverting a large part of this fund into land purchases. From March 1, 1943, to March 1, 1944, average land values per acre rose 15 per cent, with the larger part of the rise taking place in the last four months of the period. The increase during this four-month period was the highest on record, being 20 per cent greater than the average monthly rate of increase for the 1919-20 boom year. Average values per acre have increased more than one-third in the past 3 years. In the 1916-19 period the rise was about the same.

It appears that an overcapitalization of probably temporarily high farm commodity prices is in process just as in World War I. Large mortgage debts incurred now, at high levels of income, will prove disastrous when both total agricultural production and prices fall. Land values are based on the net return to land. With the end of the war in sight and with the prospect that farm labor and other costs will require a relatively larger return leaving the return to land less, the logical course for land values at present would appear to be downward rather than upward.

Therefore, it appears that farmers would do well to invest every available dollar, beyond that needed for debt retirement, in Government Bonds. These can be held against the day when necessary farm replacements will be available and when farm land values will have become more stable. In this way the individual farmer may assist in hastening the day of return of his son, and also have capital available to help finance him in ventures of his own choice. U. S. Treasury Department

IT IS generally understood that the postwar boom in sport will be on the amazing side. But it will be an entirely different matter from the sport boom after World War I. It will appeal to a far greater number of actual players but I doubt very much that it will even approach the so-called Golden age that followed the First World War—those years that brought us Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Bill Johnston, Red Grange, Charlie Paddock, Earl Sande, Rogers Hornsby and many more in almost every line of sport. Babe Ruth had been a star pitcher before. But it was not until after the war that he unwrapped his big mace and began hitting home runs.

I can't see any such stars in sight for some time to come. For this has been a longer and far more punishing war as far as our athletes are concerned. It has arrested the playing careers of far more young stars, such as Bob Feller, Ted Williams, Billy Conn, and so many others who were still short of their prime and peak when called to service.

Here and there among the younger servicemen we'll have a certain number of stars who may come close to the old-time mark—boxers, ball players and football players. But anyone who expects to see a Ruth - Dempsey - Jones - Tilden - Grange - Sande and Hornsby parade is likely to be disappointed.

It could happen, of course. Since almost anything can happen in sport. But it isn't a good bet. The odds are against it. There will be too many of our greatest stars around Pearl Harbor days back in 1941, who will be over the hill physically before they have the chance to return to competitive sport. They will still be good, many of them, but too many of them will have lost their best years.

Another Type of Boom

The sport boom that will follow this war will be another type. While it may not give the spectators such big names as we have mentioned, so many outstanding stars, it will accomplish something much more important. It will lift the general average of play and skill far higher than it ever was before.

The First World War contributed nothing to the headline mastery of the Golden age. The sport stars of that era had practically no connection with the war in any way. You can ring in Grover Cleveland Alexander, since Old Pete was a star pitcher back around 1911.

But it will be different after this war. Army and navy now have from 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 men in the service. And army and navy have outlined one of the biggest programs for sport ever known, along the line of coaching, training and competitive play.

This big swing in the direction of sport is a vital necessity. Army and navy know this. When the war in Europe is over, there will be millions who can't be rushed home or on to Asia and the Pacific at a day's notice. They will need a vast sporting program to keep them interested in life while waiting for boats and planes to bring them back, or carry them to other theaters of action.

The big weakness of sport in the United States is that we have been too much of a spectator nation—and not enough of a playing nation. This applies to our youngsters and to older men. When 25,000 out of 100,000 18-year-olds are rejected by the draft, something is obviously wrong.

Army and navy now plan to give all these millions a chance to play the games they like with greater skill, even if few of them ever become champions. There can only be one champion, at a time, after all. But there can be a vast improvement in our average skill.

Postwar Football

There is one knotty, thorny problem that the pro-football league or leagues will soon have to meet. This involves returning servicemen who may have a year or two years of college football left, but who may want to play pro-football, rather than return to campus life.

As the pro rule now works no player can be taken into pro ranks until his class has graduated. This regulation has worked well so far and has drawn the full approval of the colleges and the college coaches.

The war is almost certain to be over in Europe before next fall. That doesn't mean that all football players in army or navy will be released. But many will be, including a few from the Pacific.

Some of these college players will want to return and finish their college course. Others won't. One pro-football angle is this—"If these men don't want to go back to college, why shouldn't we use them?" Others believe the present rule that calls for waiting until their college time is over should be kept as it is or was before the war.

Improved Sheep Dip Proves Production Aid

Smaller Quantity of Derris Now Required

LATEST boon for sheep raisers comes from the U. S. department of agriculture in the form of an effective, economical and easily prepared dipping solution for ridding sheep of ticks.

Six ounces of derris powder containing 5 per cent rotenone are mixed with a little water to make a thin paste and then diluted in 100 gallons of water. Cube powder, also containing rotenone, may be substituted for derris.

Despite the limited supply of rotenone currently being imported into the U. S., flock owners may arrange for allocations to suit their needs. Control of sheep ticks is one of the authorized uses. Less than half as much derris or cube powder is needed to kill sheep ticks as was formerly thought necessary.

Dips made with derris or cube powders are not only easy to prepare, but save labor, since one dipping is enough. Most other sheep dips commonly used required two applications about 24 days apart, the first to kill adult tick and the second to kill the new crop. The rotenone in the new dip kills both the tick and the pupae in one dipping, and remains effective in the fleece for several weeks.

Another advantage of the method is that unheated water from practically any source can be used. The presence of alkali or clay does not reduce the effectiveness of the new dip. However, pure clean water is best.

Veterinarians of the department's bureau of animal industry studied the effects of dips of various strengths. None of the dipped sheep nor their fleece suffered any ill effects.

Agriculture In the News By W. J. Dryden

FACTS ON MILK

Four and one-half million farms produce milk. The annual supply in the U. S. would fill a river 3,000 miles long, 40 feet wide, and 2½ feet deep.

The dairy industry annually supplies 15,000,000 pounds of casein used in casein paint. A paste from milk fermented is used by Soviet doctors to bring about rapid healing of wounds. It is also used in making fiber and plastics, also a wool substitute.

Penicillin, in mass production, was made possible by use of casein.

Pasteurized milk will prevent the spread of undulant fever. It is the most complete food and the most perishable. Hippocrates prescribed milk in 360 B. C. to build health. Milk exposed to sun for two hours will lose 20 per cent of its vitamin G content.

Milk can be rendered sterile by filtering through sand.

Feed Cattle Corncobs

Instead of burning corncobs to get rid of them, Ohio State university specialists are urging that they be saved and fed to beef cattle. With a shortage of feed possible before the end of next year, much of the needed roughage may be furnished by the corncob.

Many farmers find it advisable to grind the whole corn, cob and all, using a coarse grind. Some report that it takes a little encouragement before the cattle will eat the corncob.

FARMERS HAVE DONE A WONDERFUL JOB OF WAR PRODUCTION

In World War II farm production has increased 25% 1939 - 1944

Your 1945 Garden Planting Early Crops Calls for Exact Practices

ONE of the most important elements of success in Victory gardening is proper timing in the planting of seeds. Too many inexperienced gardeners plant some crops too early, some not early enough to avoid hot weather for those plants which need cool growing weather for best results.

There is no hard and fast rule which can be set down to cover every section of the country on the time to plant a given crop. The gardener would do well to consult local experienced garden leaders, their local state experiment station for the frost-free date in their communities.

Generally the frost-free date is two to three weeks later than the average date of the last freeze in a locality or approximately the date that oak leaves turn out.

It is important that some crops get as early a start as possible, so that they may be well along when warm or hot weather comes.

The hardy plants for early spring planting and which may be planted from four to six weeks before the frost-free date include broccoli, cabbage, lettuce, onions, peas, potatoes, spinach and turnips. If the gardener grows his own broccoli and cabbage plants, the seed should be sown six to eight weeks before transplanting time. It will hardly pay the average small gardener to raise his own plants, however, since he can buy the plants ready for transplanting readily and cheaply.

Mulching material will prevent the soil from packing and crust forming.

Other crops which may be planted two to four weeks before the frost-free date include beets, carrots, chard, mustard, parsnips and radishes.

Plants which will be nipped by frost and should not be planted before danger of frost is over include snap beans, cucumbers, okra, New Zealand spinach, soybeans, squash, sweet corn and tomatoes.

Crops which like hot weather and are good for warm weather planting include lima beans, egg plant, peppers and sweet potatoes.

Hardy plants for late summer or fall planting, except in the northern states, include beets, collards, kale, lettuce, mustard, spinach and turnips.

Perhaps the most common error made by inexperienced gardeners is the sowing of too much seed and the failure to thin out the excess plants in the rows. Crowding of the plants not only causes poor quality but also generally results in poor yields. Another common error is planting the seeds too deep. The gardener should consult local charts or an experienced gardener to determine proper depth, width between rows and amount of seed for planting.

Amount of Seed Used Important

For small seeds the soil must be worked until fine, smooth and free of clods, trash or stones. In making rows about one-fourth to one-half inch deep for planting small seeds, the end of the rake or hoe handle may be used, drawn along the string that marks the row. For larger seeds which are to be planted an inch or deeper, the row is best opened with the corner of the common hoe. Care should be taken that all seeds in the row are covered to an even depth and that the earth is firmed, but not packed over them.

In soil which is inclined to pack or crust interfering with the seedling coming through, the covered row should be mulched lightly with muck, peat, leaf-mold or similar fine moisture-holding material.

In setting out cabbage plants or any other plant which is transplanted, care should be taken not to interrupt the growth.

Under southern conditions practically all vegetable plants may be started in specially prepared beds in the open with little or no covering. In the middle section and throughout the North and West, if an early garden is desired, it is essential that certain crops such as tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, cabbage and cauliflower and occasionally lettuce, onions, beets, cucumbers, squashes and melons be started indoors or in cold frames. The simplest method of growing early plants is to provide a flat tray or box, filled into south window.

Lint From a Blue Serge Suit:

Just before the war, Jan Smeterlin, the eminent Polish pianist, was on a world concert tour and at one point visited Valdemosa on the island of Majorca, which was the place where Chopin lived. Smeterlin visited the monastery which was Chopin's home (and has since been turned into a private residence) hoping to see the piano on which Chopin played. He was told that the piano was now the property of a private family in Palma. Smeterlin located that family and as he stood in rapt awe looking at this box, which was the instrument of the great Polish immortal, the man of the house said, "Surely, Mr. Smeterlin, you're going to play on it!"

Smeterlin replied reverently, "Oh—I wouldn't think of touching it."

To which his host said, "Oh, nonsense—my children bang on it all the time!"

Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black is a fiend for Lyonnais potatoes. A new waitress at his favorite restaurant brought him french fries in error and told him she couldn't change the order. . . . A Washington reporter, seated next by, asked her if she knew the patron was a United States high court judge.

Unimpressed, she refused to change the order, explaining: "How often do they change their decisions?"

We've only used it twice before, but every time some contributor offers it we get the giggles and have to print it all over again. It's about Mr. Mefoofsky and his four-year-old son, Itzic. . . . They were strolling in the park, and the boy kept asking all sorts of questions. It was getting on Mefoofsky's "noisy."

"Poppa," persisted Itzic, "wot kind flowers is doze?"

"How should I know?" exploded Mefoofsky. "Am I in the millinery bizniz?"

James Gordon Bennett, (who used to own the N. Y. Herald) had a list of "don'ts" for reporters that was as long as the memory of a radio comedian. . . . Every once in a while, though, the boys made him take one back. "Don't use 'patron' or 'guest' in referring to a paying customer at a hotel," one rule went, "because you are using the word incorrectly."

The rule was changed when the boys on the rewrite desk (searching for other words) started to refer to persons who registered at hotels as "inmates."

New Yorkers' Notebook:

The English are giggling over the cook's dog at an RAF flying field. The canine dashed down the runway in pursuit of a plane taking off. . . . "Does your dog always do that?" a new officer asked. . . . The cook said yep. . . . "Why?" the officer wanted to know.

"I don't know, sir," replied the dog's owner. "But what worries me is what he's going to do with it when he catches a plane."

Ivor Newton, the London pianist, heard a Cockney give this explanation of his own courage regarding the robot bombings: "I see it like this. It must take the Germans a lot of trouble to make the bloody things, and then they have to get them into those pits and up in the air, and it is quite a long way from France to London, and if they do get to London, they still have to find Limehouse, and even then, it isn't everyone who can find 37 Bulstrode road where I live, and if they do, it's 10 to 1 that I would be down the corner in the Pub."

At the home of mutual friends, after the funeral of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Winston Churchill, who was touched by the prelate's passing, said: "Once again, the nation has lost a great churchman and a great Englishman." . . . Then, in an aside, Mr. Churchill, who credits his 70 years to having a drink now and then, added: "And once again one of my good friends has met the untimely end of a complete teetotaler!"

Story of the Week: The newest General Patton legend according to just-retained correspondents. . . . When the Germans cold-bloodedly murdered Gen. Maurice Rose, Patton was strangely silent for a long time. . . . Then he reached slowly into his jacket pocket from which he removed a German-English dictionary. . . . And crossed out the word "mercy."

The other night Prof. Leo Reisman relayed the one about the trainee at a naval radio training center in Georgia. His station was the radio tower. . . . He became worried when he couldn't account for an incoming fleet of planes. He flashed: "X Radio Tower calling Pilot Jones. Been messaging you but got no answer. If you hear me, wabble wings."

Shortly came the reply: "Pilot Jones calling X Radio Tower. I landed two hours ago. If you hear me, wabble tower!"

veiling. Shaded pink carnations and sweet peas were the flowers that made up her bouquet tied with pink satin ribbons.

Mrs. Leonard Erickson served her sister as bridesmaid. She was dressed like that of the maid of honor, with her gown being coral net over coral satin. Her bouquet was of Talisman carnations and yellow daisies, tied with yellow satin ribbons.

With her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride slowly advanced to the altar. Her lovely wedding gown was of white satin made with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, long tight fitting sleeves and an extremely long train. Her veil was held in place by a net crown. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and white sweet peas, tied with white satin ribbons. As her jewelry the bride wore a gold locket, a gift of the bridegroom.

Richard Eggman served his brother as best man and Wm. Todd also attended the groom. The Usherettes, Miss Ruth Cashion, Miss Marjorie Makeover, Miss Dolores Dagon and Mrs. Marshall Padden all wore pastel shaded satin gowns, and their flowers were gardenias worn in their hair.

Lohengrins wedding march was played by Mrs. Esther Fields Davies as the bridal party entered. Preceding the ceremony Miss Betty Lou Taylor, gowned in pink satin, and wearing gardenias in her hair, sang "Always", and "Tell Me, Do You Love Me".

Following the wedding a reception was held for 100 guests in the church parlors. The brides table was centered with a large wedding cake, surrounded by tulips and yellow crocus, and flanked by slender white tapers.

Miss Norma Heaps, gowned in blue satin, cut the wedding cake and Miss Mildred Davis gowned in pink, poured from the Silver Service. They too wore gardenias in their hair.

Mrs. Hoefer wore a green sheer two piece dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink sweet peas and roses, for her daughter's wedding Mrs. Eggman was attired in a paisley jersey with black accessories and pink sweet peas and roses for her corsage.

The couple departed on a short wedding trip and upon their return Pvt. Eggman left for Ft. Meade, Md. Tuesday where he is stationed with the armored tank division.

Both Pvt. and Mrs. Eggman are High school and Joliet Junior college graduates from the Joliet Township high school. Pvt. Eggman also graduated from the Iowa State college and Mrs. Eggman who teaches in the New Lenox school, will reside with her parents for the present.

The Rev. E. H. Plassman of Peotone Evangelical church performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Harold Pattingale sang "Always" and "I Love You Truly".

As the Lohengrin wedding march was played by Miss Gladys Fries of Alpine, the bridal party took their places before an arch decorated with gladioli and lilacs. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a green suit with white accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of white gardenias.

Miss Fay Tuttle of Tinley Park was maid of honor and wore a brown suit with white accessories and her corsage was of pink roses.

Clarence Sippel of Monee was the best man.

The brides' mother wore a gray print crepe dress and the groom's mother wore a blue sheer and both had shoulder corsages of pink carnations.

A wedding dinner was served to 65 relatives and close friends at the groom's home. Out of town guests were from Tinley Park, Harvey, Wheaton and Joliet.

Mr. and Mrs. Froehner will make their home on the A. T. Froehner farm north of Peotone where the groom has been engaged in farming.

PRODUCED GAIN AT 15% LOWER COST PER POUND than the best previous Master Mix rations*

15c saved out of every feeding dollar in these laboratory-controlled tests

That's not just a "guess"... not just a careless "claim." 15% savings were actually recorded in carefully controlled tests in which the results of feeding Master Mix rations containing new, revolutionary METHIO-VITE were compared with those of feeding the best previous Master Mix rations — universally recognized as among the most efficient and economical of feeds.

Start, today, to get the benefit of new 1945 Master Mix Concentrates and Complete Feeds, fortified with METHIO-VITE. Because conditions, stock, management vary so greatly, we cannot promise that your saving will total 15%. It may be less. It may even be more. But one thing is certain: you'll produce poultry and pork faster, at lower cost, than with any Master Mix ration we have ever made before. And that means a big increase in profits for you.

Now available... Master Mix Concentrates and Complete Feeds with M-V (METHIO-VITE) for sows, pigs, breeding hens. Available soon in other Master Mix rations.

WHAT IS METHIO-VITE?

Methio-Vite is a new-found, practical source of essential B-complex vitamins and of the Methionine complex — "spark plug" of the amino acids that make protein the important nutritive factor it is. It is the result of two solid years of research at the McMillen laboratories... of specific tests on thousands of animals with hundreds of rations.

the Ful-O-Pep Way!

SAVE on the cost of feeding hogs for market by supplementing your grain with Ful-O-Pep Hog Feed Concentrate. Yes, you may save as much as 1/3 on feed cost by following the Ful-O-Pep Plan as against feeding corn alone. Ful-O-Pep Hog Feed Concentrate furnishes a variety of choice proteins, plus vitamins and organic salts to supply the things grain lacks. Begin feeding Ful-O-Pep Hog Concentrate when hogs reach 75 pounds, and continue it straight through to market time. For low cost gains, and real pork profits, supplement corn with this highly efficient concentrate. Come in and talk with us about Ful-O-Pep Hog Concentrate and other profitable Ful-O-Pep Feeds for hogs.
